

Understanding Autism and Best Practice Support: Disability Employment Services

This 3-hour workshop aims to increase confidence in interacting and effectively supporting autistic clients to facilitate self-advocacy and empowerment.

The unemployment rate for Autistic Australian adults is more than three times the rate of people with disability and almost six times the rate of neurotypical adults. Research indicates that while most employers (93% of large businesses and 89% of medium-sized businesses) indicate an openness to hiring people with disability, only around a third of businesses do so.

Many employers do not know where to start and need support to build their capability and confidence to hire, support and retain people with disability. Autism Tasmania can work with your staff to provide training, support and coaching to build the skills and capacity within your team to get better outcomes for autistic job seekers.

Learning Outcomes

- » Greater awareness of the thinking and understanding differences and the sensory sensitivities Autistic people may be living with
- » Knowledge of the benefits to employers of employing Autistic people and an awareness of the challenges they may face in a workplace
- » Strategies for best practice support and communicating effectively with Autistic people
- » Knowledge of the Integrated Employment Success Tool (IEST) an autism-specific workplace tool that supports employers to modify the work environment to meet the specific needs of Autistic employees

Facilitated Discussion

These are a unique and popular aspect of Autism Tasmania's training program and reflect the high value that our organisation places on the direct involvement of Tasmania's Autistic community in increasing autism awareness and acceptance within our state. Autism Tasmania engage Autistic Educators with lived experience who are passionate about sharing their personal knowledge of autism with training participants.
